GENERAL INFORMATION

IDIS is an independent think tank, established in 1993 as a research and advocacy think tank, incorporated by Moldovan laws on non-for-profit and NGOs. Unlike other think tanks in Moldova, IDIS is successfully combining social, political and economic research with solid advocacy components. It undertakes applied field research and monitor targeted issues in several fields: economics, subsidiarity, social policy, EU policies, regional development, but also security risks and foreign policy, but, it also plans and implement regular policy debates and conferences, conduct considerable outreach activities at the local and regional level, and regularly uphold an active presence in mass media. By definition, IDIS is acting as a multi-issue think tank, which would fit into the „2nd phase think tanks’ group”1. It combines a group of intertwined professional clusters, organized into thematic areas. IDIS allocates major resources to combine sectorial studies with active networking and advocacy, usually via networks of clients, allies, and stakeholders (unions, business associations, policy innovators, social entrepreneurs, local authorities, educators, and other entities), in several public mobilization projects. Thus, IDIS is „tanking” its ideas, although it uphold a significant amount of analytical products, in various fields of political, social and economic interest. IDIS is not a politically-affiliated think tank, and refutes partisan connections. Following its institutional Charter2, IDIS continues to play an important role in assisting policy-makers in Moldova to comply with their institutional responsibilities, build up consensus on the national priorities, bringing the country into a normalcy fit to reforms and European values.

IDIS conducts its activities in compliance with its Charter. An Administrative Board is executing a general oversight on the executive work done by an Executive Director, which is nominated by the Administrative Board. Executive Director is proposing to the Administrative Board a framework for adopting the Annual Plan and other strategic documents that need to be endorsed. On behalf of the Board, a Chairman is delegated to communicate with external audiences, oversee the work of the Executive Director on all aspects related to the current work of IDIS. Consistent with the Charter, the Board is also advising IDIS on strategic and research issues, on programs and budgetary issues. In July 2016, IDIS Administrative Council instructed the Management Team to establish an International Board, which emerged in November 2016. Members of the International Advisory Board are nominated for a 4-years full mandate. International Advisors are expected to guide, coach new policy areas in the economic and social policy, direct new ideas in business, governmental affairs, foreign policy, education, defense and security, cyber and e-governance. Members of the IAB attend annual or extraordinary reunions of the International Advisory Board traveling to Moldova or to other places or by holding media communications, on-line coordination meetings with IDIS management team. Participation to the flagship projects gives also important leverages to the IAB Members to oversee and expand IDIS’s field of work, professional networks and institutional affiliations.

Strategic evaluation is conducted at IDIS through Annual evaluation retreats, convened by the Executive Director and members of the Administrative Board. In terms of financial durability, IDIS is getting usually finances mainly on the basis of project proposals, with few developmental purposes. Several IDIS programs have multi-annual duration, which are thus very good in terms of making the programming more effective. In this regard, IDIS needs to orient its priorities through an Operational Plan for more than 3 years, which will project the priorities and projects that correspond to the profile, expertise, experience and ambition of the think tank. Fundraising activities need to respond to the strategic priorities, and not vice versa, on a day-to-day basis. In the areas of organizational development, IDIS has adopted in 2015 a Handbook of Procedures, which defines the proceedings in place regulating almost all legal and technical aspects related to the maintenance, organization of tenders, management of finances, negotiation of payrolls and individual contracting, workload, salary/benefits formation, hiring and dismissing of personnel, ethics. An Ethical Code of Conduct is being in place since January 2016.

Since, IDIS has grown out from its 1st stage of development, its operational tasks and strategic views became more complex. Diversifying sources of funds, setting higher standards for the implementation of functions, operational standards and clear rules for experts and technical staff would greatly improve IDIS overall management. Often, experts shall dedicate more time on fundraising than on research, while constant changes in the donor’s requirements and their limited resources (small grants) further complicates the access to resources. It is obvious that all strategic documents and new proceedings need to be accepted and internalized by the personnel. Of great use would serve to IDIS to restore regular strategic sessions, where team leaders, resident scholars and other members of the organization, would be able to define, discuss or adjust various indicators of success, benchmarks of good performance for experts and technical staff, which will have a positive effect on the impact assessment for the institutional priorities.

PROJECTED GOALS AND INSTITUTIONAL STRUCTURE

To be a leading public policy institute essentially contributing to the growth of independent thinking environment, competitiveness of the Moldovan society and economy, in a well-governed state, favorable to educated citizenship. Our Institute consists from a number of cluster-fields (economics, taxation, decentralization, foreign policy, regional development, social and educational policy), where teams of dedicated experts conduct research, train or advocate for policy changes, with outstanding knowledge and expertise. Institutionally, IDIS is organized in the following departments: Functional Market Economy Department runs regular economic analysis and forecast, taxation and tax awareness of citizens, poverty reduction and other social policies. Decentralization and Regional Development Department operates as a resource center, training and research division in the areas of legal protection of the local authorities, strategic planning and technical assistance, lobbying and tutorials. Competitive Society Department is mainly a specialized team in social policy and democratic education.

2016 STRATEGIC INTROSPECTION FOR IDIS

In 2016, IDIS undertook a serious strategic effort to assess the implementation of its Strategic Plan (2009-2015) and define new scope along its institutional Charter (2016-2020), set up the mission and institutional goals. A brief overview of the accomplished results reveals that IDIS portfolio evolved in time: the Institute is now a stable and maturing institution, well exposed to international and regional activities, one of the building blocks of the civil society in Moldova, and a supporter of EU modernization. It emerged as a credible partner for Transnistrian business in making the first steps to accommodate to the DCFTA implementation, with IDIS playing the facilitating platform for the Moldovan governmental bodies, agencies and ministries in addressing various questions of the business communities from the left bank of Dniester. It continues to edit, publish and publicly present a quarterly economic analysis Economic Outlook. A series of Policy Briefs and Policy Papers is edited regularly by Senior Program Directors, with support from various partner organizations. In 2016, IDIS has successfully launched its work on the Annual Human Development Report (2016) for the UNDP-Moldova. In 2016, IDIS continued to serve as a facilitator to the Moldovan business associations in transforming the existing dialogue and cooperation mechanisms with the central government, under its National Business Agenda Platform. Seen as an honest broker, IDIS gained recognition in 2016 in setting up an updated format of cooperation with the regional authorities of Gagauzia for the new Development strategy of the Autonomy. In 2016, IDIS concluded a Coalition Agreement with both CALM (Congress of Local Authorities of Moldova) and Promo Lex (a premium human rights watch in Moldova) in the fields of promoting decentralization and accountable government. Based on an annual Cooperative agreement with 3 public institutions, IDIS has conducted a serious evaluation work on the national regulatory for electricity in Moldova (ANRE), one of the largest state companies (Moldtelecom) and the Ministry of Social Protection, which has recently decided to reform and integrate all social services delivered to various groups of populations into a national-wide Agency of social services, IDIS providing technical support in this complex transition. For years, IDIS is referenced as a networking platform for various fields of policy-analysis (energy, trade, agriculture, competition, budget transparency, management of EU funding). Providing technical support to various stakeholders (ministries, departments), IDIS maintains a sort of professional neutrality and non-partisan affiliation to the political parties, thus, keeping its independent mindset and liberal ideas non-negotiable. Some of its previous setups merged into full-fledged organizations, such as ANTEM (National Association of European Trainers), CALM (Congress of Local Authorities of Moldova).

TARGET AUDIENCE

The Institute for Development and Social Initiatives (IDIS) target beneficiaries include: private business, municipal governments, central governmental agencies, think tanks, academia, and mass media outlets. Consistent with this mission, IDIS has established solid linkages between the academic and policy-making environments, generating policy analysis and recommendations for various areas of public interest and law-making, creating and disseminating of the best practices, good governance, and economic analysis. IDIS is also a common platform that brings together young intellectuals who are concerned with the success of transition towards the free market and the open society. IDIS helps them to contribute with their energies, values and virtues, providing its logistic, moral and intellectual support and advices them regarding their future projects and initiatives.

Our flagship economic-advocacy project, National Business Agenda, is now seen as one of the most respected frameworks for private-public dialogue, involving the largest business associations of Moldova, Government, under serious oversight from the leading partners for development (WB, IMF, EBRD, EU). In their support, IDIS has carried out successful mobilization projects. One of the most acclaimed initiatives – European Moldova Convention (2010-2015), financed by the Slovak Government and implemented in cooperation with APE (Foreign Policy Association) and Expert Grup – provided wide-national visibility and trust in generating additional incentives for the negotiations of the DCFTA and Visa-Free regime for Moldovan citizens.

Since 2013, IDIS launched its Freedom Award series, allowing it to praise personalities in several fields of democratic work (human rights, cultural promotion, innovation and teaching excellence), which is becoming one of the best public advocacy initiatives, recently. Nevertheless, recent evaluation of IDIS work and activities by the Administrative Board found out a series of structural weakness and flaws in the organization. The assessment was carried by the executive leaders of IDIS, with oversight from the Administrative Board Members. In undertaking this review over the past activities, needs and growth plans, we’ve noticed that there are gaps and missed opportunities, failures or partial success, which need to be fixed. As such, the review found that weaknesses can affect the quality of policy research and methodology if they will be left without response; same for organizational gaps and communication. Thus, a clear action plan of activities to restore integrity of the research, communication and organization was proposed, as it is highlighted below:

IDIS has been directly involved in promoting the Association Agreement national acceptance throughout the regional and national levels, monitoring Moldova’s implementation of the DCFTA commitments, compliance with negotiated standards and obligations. It implemented joint-training for Moldovan officials involved in negotiating Association Agreement with EU (in cooperation with EIR – European Institute of Romania). IDIS Experts were actively involved in producing the EaP Index (Index of EU integration of the countries of Eastern Partnership), Monitoring reports on Visa-liberalization for Moldova (inventory of achievements and failures), Assessment Country Report on EU funding for Moldova (2005-2009), Impact of DCFTA on farmers of Moldova and agro-processing economy (2014). Of special relevance for IDIS served its early warning toolkit to monitor the situation in the security zone of Transnistria; it reported on new geopolitical dynamics in Tiraspol and Comrat (2011-2014). Special emphasize raised area studies dedicated to NATO, CIS and security arrangements in the FSU space. It also issued a 3-years Foreign Policy Statewatch, aimed at informing foreign partners, active citizens, think tanks and media about Moldova’s options, gaps and priorities, in an attempt to maintain a framework for open dialogues with different stakeholders, foster international understanding.

In terms of regional development, IDIS continues to serve as the largest national platform for best practices in local public administration, reflecting on the thorny aspects of decentralization (legal, budgetary, financial and public services) issues. IDIS Annual Awards for the Best practices of the local governments is clearly one of the most appreciated events of the year, strengthening our Institute’s reputation across Moldova. Periodically, IDIS is awarding best practices, producing educational video and films, sharing excellent practices in municipal and regional governance. Of special values were the IDIS build up and coached inter-communal services firms, describing best practices and performance oriented enterprises.
IDIS hosts regular regional forums on SMEs development (2013, 2014, 2015), in Gagauzia, Cahul, Chisinau, in cooperation with GIZ. In active cooperation with capital city-hall, IDIS was able to implement highly effective projects in the areas of energy efficiency, investment, branding for development, in close cooperation with OSCE, CoE, OECD and UNDP. Since 2012, IDIS is regularly implementing SME’s Annual forums, in cooperation with German Chamber of Trade. Also, National Business Agenda is seen as one of the most successful advocacy instruments in the field of regulatory business reform.

Of particular relevance for IDIS was the area of scholar studies and monitoring of the party financing in Moldova, with support of ODHR/OSCE. IDIS monitored the use of unregistered financing in local elections (2011, S.Lipcean, C.Ciurea), investigated the compliance of parties with existing CoE standards on financing (2012, S.Lipcean, C.Cozonac), while monitoring the results of the 2007 Law on political parties and role of Ministry of Justice (I.Munteanu, 2010). Education reforms attracted considerable analytical efforts from IDIS, which provided primer studies in pre-school and vocational education, impact of budgetary arrangements on higher education in Moldova. IDIS continued to serve as a Clearing House to the business associations and governmental stakeholders. Its analytical studies on entrepreneurship, subsidies, energy, banking, were at high demand.

In 2014, the European Parliament hosted teams of IDIS experts in Brussels on the issues of DCFTA/AA implementation, reforming the EaP, and Europe-Russia conundrum. IDIS is keen to maintain excellent relations with our regional partners, such as Institute for World Policy (Ukraine), Institute for Public Policies (Romania), Georgian Foundation for Strategic and International Studies, all German Stiftungs, targeting specific area studies, academic and policy-driven forums, as well as through an active participation to the sponsorship of joint publications.

A major advantage for IDIS is its considerable experience in conducting evidence-based research, outstanding creativity in mobilizing stakeholders, successful implementation of its commitments. Dozens of letters of appreciation were received by IDIS from various local and regional authorities for its developmental projects, infrastructure and strategic planning, but also for its public-advocacy campaigns (Street Euro-Universities), joint research and outreaching projects, implemented by IDIS with various local and international partners.

NEW BENCHMARKS FOR INSTITUTIONAL DEVELOPMENT IN 2017

As a leading think tank in Moldova, IDIS aspires to maintain high-standards and excellence in its policy-oriented activities in 2017. High standards in research, consultancy, training and policy-interventions will reward its permanent and associated pool of experts.

We aim to provide technical support in the implementation of the DCFTA, cooperating with AIPA, ANSA, Ministry of Finance, and Ministry of Economy. Based on the strong demand for cooperation from the Bureau for Reintegration, IDIS will deliver new forms of analytical toolkits in the reintegration strategic policy of Moldova, through early warning reports, Hybrid Power reviews. In terms of education, IDIS plans to continue cooperation with Ministry of Social Protection in holding cross-institutional dialogues, known as ‘planning talks’. We plan to undertake broad analytical studies of regional and functional issues, identifying gaps in the policy, institutional setbacks, initiating policy planning, while formulating specific policy recommendations and proposals to fill these gaps. Policy Statewatch on economic and social trends/policies will be elaborated and spread out towards a targeted audience (politicians, media, executive officials, think tank community).

The funding will allow IDIS to implement a full-fledged monitoring instrument of the social, economic and institutional policies of the state in Moldova, enabling civil society to advocate under a common voice, at both national and international level, with the need to address as seriously as possible the challenges and threats that are experienced by transitional societies like Moldova. Our contribution is to provide new incentives for the upcoming debates on the administration reform, be able to intervene on behalf of public’s interest a wide and variegated format of debates, accomplish appropriate desk analysis that will led to the formulation of specific policy proposals to the decision-makers. As in the past, IDIS commits to actively engage itself in the field of policy planning and advocacy for reforms. The topics of the policy-oriented research, training and technical consultancy is highlighted above, in the specific planed department’s charters, while prioritization of the research agenda will be systematically adjusted. Raising public awareness of challenges of democratic development constitutes the objective of such activities. We view this regular IDIS activity as a means to provide for a transparent, accessible and intelligible framework that will allow both the public to participate openly in the debate and will enable the policy-makers to receive from the civil society the feedback concerning the policy-goals that the decision makers set.

Activity 1.1. Conduct a process of organizational change and learning inside of IDIS. As a pathway to organizational consolidation, we plan to engage IDIS in a consistent process of change management and rule-approximation of the best practices in successful organizations. A Handbook of procedures was adopted during 2016 in a participatory manner with all staff members under oversight from the Administrative Council. This regulation is defining the areas of executive authority and direct responsibility of the Executive Director, Deputy Director. Oversight of the Administrative Board over the financial and implementation of priorities of the Institute is also enshrined into the Board. International Advisors Board, Board of Founders, according to the IDIS Founding Charter. To be governed effectively, think tanks demand the observance of a number of written codes and informal rules as operational norms for the day-to-day management, as well as for strategic decisions. The Handbook will enshrine the basical provisions and norms of the organization in compliance with existing laws and managerial traditions at IDIS. In brief, the Handbook of procedures will regulate the issues related to: hiring of personal, office maintenance, performance evaluation, budgeting and payroll, oversight and communication.

Activity 1.2. Design and Install an International Advisory Board. An international Board of Advisors will be created to serve as an external oversight council, according to the IDIS international partnerships and future goals. The Advisors will be selected and invited to join the Board as a method to strengthen institutional ties with other partnering organizations as bridges to the Western European and USA think tanks and academic communities. As part of the organizational development, International Advisors will be able to discuss IDIS future priorities and international cooperation, connecting teams of experts with various partner institutions abroad, forming new partnerships and or increasing scholar’s mobility.
Activity 1.3. Organize a Strategic Benchmarking Training. A Strategic Benchmarking Orientation Training will be also necessary to discuss, adopt and acquire a good definition of the performance benchmarks and criteria required for internal evaluation. The SBOT may be implemented as an in-house workshop or as part of a larger retreat session.

Activity 1.4. Hire a Fundraiser and Grant manager. Further improve the IDIS capacity to plan, undertake consistent effort to ensure a stable growth strategy for the existing research and advocacy needs (IDIS). Of huge importance for IDIS is to hire, train and integrate into its operational management a skillful Grant manager/Fundraising Developer, equipped with excellent knowledge to work through consultancy and grant-making.

Activity 2.1. Review and plan a comprehensive improvement of the communication skills. Acquiring additional skills in the field of social media is becoming an overarching task for think tanks since it cannot be done now only with the help of the traditional PR officer. We fear that our best analytical reports and papers are undermined sometimes by poor communication with beneficiaries. Time is right to design new platforms for IDIS to adopt new communication strategies and instruments through well-designed two-days Communicational Workshop. This shall include a review of the available instruments of distributing policy-advice to the policy-makers or interested beneficiaries (reports, policy papers, briefs, memos), but also technical backup as to how connect ideas with effective stakeholders (via websites, FB, twitter, direct podcasts).

Activity 2.2. Upgrading technical capabilities of social media at IDIS. A mix of quality research with the best ways to present policy-findings will enable IDIS to influence target-beneficiaries in open events as well as via informal issue-related conversations with stakeholders. Social media workshop shall incorporate also a significant degree of technical sophistication for the think tank staff and experts as to the available software. The need for training for TV and Radio shows is high. Often, experts tend to give long statements, saturated with statistical estimates or policy terms, based on the professional fields of the experts. The need to train experts into effective communication must acquire several tips for good presentations, coaching individual experts, i.e. taping and reviewing models of interviews, conduct writing and speaking classes.

Activity 2.3. Create standards of excellence in communicating think tank ideas and products. IDIS shall acquire a level of good expertise and knowledge about the standards of dissemination, which are adopted by each of the staff member and create a certain pattern of communicating results. Based on a multi-layered workshop on social communication, IDIS will set up criteria of communication performance for its own actions, based on a cost-benefit criteria, media coverage, media quotations/references, satisfaction of customers, etc. The latter component shall deal with: (1) identifying target audience, (2) defining the content and the core message, (3) keeping up the good standards of original sources and available platforms to communicate. In addition to the direct training for communication, this will enforce IDIS to think over institutional factors that influence successful communication, like: budgeting costs for communication, estimating effectiveness indicators, necessary equipment and sharing joint responsibilities for the final results.

Activity 3.1. Adopt new quality control mechanisms. Appropriate quality control is critical to the credibility of think tanks. While competence and experience may be seen as important for acquiring excellence in communication, IDIS shall set up formal and informal quality control mechanism for the published reports, publications, and analytical papers. For instance, a peer review Guidelines shall be mandatory in the process of writing up and finalizing analytical or advocacy-related research, other publications and advocacy materials. This Guidelines becomes thus a proxy for every hired individual at IDIS, setting standards for scientifical objectivity, factological background, logical and methodological aspects, as well as the target of the respective policy instrument. Peer reviewers or team leaders will be quoted in the final reports, so their institutional responsibility for the quality of their research will be thus entitled to them before releasing the final reports.

Activity 3.2. Institutional matrix for analytical products. Adopting enhanced criteria for quality will allow IDIS to consider new tools for analysis and institutional monitoring. In this regard, IDIS will hold a Methodological Workshop to design instruments of assessing public services delivered to citizens by public authorities by a Satisfaction Index (PSSI). This approach will be applied to a selected number of key-areas: licensing, housing, health, water, telecommunications, transportation, education, as well as the energy sector. The PPSI will become a critical instrument in further monitoring the impact of the public administration reforms in Moldova (www.rapc.gov.md). Methodological Workshop on economic forecasting and assessment of macro-economic data. This will enable IDIS to review its instruments of monitoring (Quarterly Economic Monitor, Confidence Index, Economic crisis outlooks) under supervision of an external Mentor. Credible tools of policy evaluation, cost-benefits analysis, stakeholder’s mobilization and public awareness will be pursued to streamline impetus for well-implemented reforms, leadership and public management centered on public interests. This approach is fully in line with our (IDIS) institutional commitment to pursue EU-RM Association Agreement provisions, as well as the turning point, in mobilizing support for good governance.

Activity 3.3. Upgrade professional training for IDIS Experts. We are keen to expand exponentially our current level of training and interaction for our experts with other partner organizations. In this regard, we would like to plan and implement one (1) study visits (at the Stockholm School of Economics in Riga) in order to borrow in the Republic of Moldova the methodology for new products. In order to better address the macroeconomic analysis and forecasts needs, IDIS is seeking for capacity building by methodological transfers aiming to conduct applied research for the needs of the local business community and government by honing the professional skills of IDIS researchers, improving their access to new articles and datasets, trainings as well as peers and mentors. Riga visit will be conducted to get acquainted with the methodology of the Shadow Economy Index for Baltic countries, elaborated by Stockholm Economic School. The team of experts which will be composed of 2 persons (Viorel Chiviriga, senior economist, and Corina Gaibu, economist) will have a 3 days long visit at this institution and will study the methods used in constructing the Index (survey of entrepreneurs – what kind of questions need to be asked about shadow activity and for which period; calculation of Index – which method is better to use and why; which other methodology of methods should be followed in order to have a more available and precise information).

3 In 2006, USAID supported a large functional analysis of the central public administration, but slow progress in the implementation of the new concept was largely attributed to the hyper-politicization of the civil service.
